

Superhero in Training

This immersive program focuses on naturally building self-esteem and social confidence through play-based themes and “in the moment” lessons. Group relationships are built through shared interests while social skills are strengthened through multi-sensory based games and play while meeting each child’s individual sensory needs. The program is geared for verbal children (speaking and/or use of alternative communication systems) that have basic peer awareness and would benefit from therapeutic activities to build reciprocal interactions. These positive experiences are foundational building blocks for a child’s social development.

This program helps:

- Expand non-verbal and verbal social communication skills
- Increase ability to initiate social interactions with peers
- Improve social awareness and shared problem-solving
- Increase experience of regulation during social interaction to support overall social capacities
